

Product Manager Role

Based in La Coruna, Spain ZARA HEADOFFICES

w w w . z a r a . c o m

Z A R A

Functions

Due to the Zara's expansion in Japan, we are looking for Product Managers to join the team that manages these countries and the zara.com project. You will take the responsibility of the Zara Woman collections follow-up in the stores to fulfill the assigned sales budget. Your main tasks will be:

- You will analyze your market: the acceptance of the product by the customers, improvement proposals, competence analysis.
- You will communicate the possible specific product needs to the Buying and the Design Department. You will adapt the collection to your own market.
- You will make a sales follow-up: by store, by family.
- You will do the control of stocks: in the store, in the warehouse. Movements between stores. To center the merchandise.
- You will manage the merchandise returning.
- The attention to the stores: you will inform about the product they are going to receive, how to place it. You will help with the orders. Reinforcement orders. Special orders.
- The selection of the initial order in the new stores openings.

You will work in a team with the designers, buyers, area responsables and warehouses.

Requirements

- Store experience or/and product management (textile) experience is required
- Native Japanese and English fluent
- Other languages like Spanish are valued
- Good knowledge in Office package
- Autonomous and able to make decisions.
- Good organization and communication skills.
- Good teamwork skills.
- Customer orientation.
- Available to travel and work on a full time basis.